Wyo. National Guard sets town meetings

CHEYENNE – The Wyoming National Guard has scheduled town meetings around Wyoming to bring together military personnel, community members, legislators, retirees, and families.

Seventeen meetings have been set to discuss the important connection between the military and Wyoming residents, especially how the two groups can work together to assist Wyoming families during deployments.

Wyoming National Guard command staff will attend each meeting to answer questions from family members, veterans, retirees and interested members of the public.

The meetings begin at 5:30 p.m. in the town armories, unless otherwise noted.
